Berlin's Amazing Deal
What of Electric Iron?
30 Divorces an Hour
Lodge on the Ether

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

BERLIN has proved that it pays to try public ownership, even if you do not keep at it. Berlin's electric light and power companies, owned by the people, have been sold to private individuals, including American investors, for $132,000,000. In addition the city gets $7,000,000 of the company's stock and one-half of its excess profits, that is, all profits above a normal return on the investment.

That will seem rather bolshevistic to our private power companies at home. Think of paying for a public monopoly, then giving the citizens a share in the company, and half of the excess profits. That is worthy of Lenin and Stalin, at their worst.

THE AMERICAN Iron & Steel Institute shows that Pennsylvania is still the great iron state, exceeding all others in production of finished rolled iron and steel; 14,860,360 tons was last year's Pennsylvania production.

It would be interesting to know what progress has been made in electric production of steel, in which Judge Gary was much interested at the time of his death. "Big Steel" might let us know about that.

The electric method of producing steel, less expensive, requiring less high temperature, and producing a steel far superior to the usual kind, almost rustproof, would change the steel industry, as coal and ore are found together in Pennsylvania changed and destroyed the old system of smelting ore from bogs, with charcoal for fuel.

The electric process using ores now worthless, including iron that abounds along the Pacific, might transfer steel supremacy to the Pacific coast.

It is said that one good idea, one great invention, would change the world from depression to prosperity overnight. The world was in despair after Waterloo. The invention of steam started everything going, increased population by 500 per cent, multiplied the value of industry by one thousand.

Who will produce the one idea?

RENO, NEV., has solved part of its problems, while the rest of the world has talked, with a divorce idea. The divorces now average one every two minutes.

Each represents three weeks of residence by "liberal spenders." A man anxious to get rid of a wife is more liberal than he was at the start.

Lawyers collect large fees, which remain in Nevada, and while the three weeks' legal residence drag along, visitors leave much of their money in gambling houses that the law encourages, or ignores.

However, that is only changing money from one pocket to another. It creates nothing new, and while it may help Nevada, it will not help the nation at large.

A MICROBE, living inside of a 50,000-ton steamship, goes about its little affairs, using its tiny fraction of energy, never dreaming of the greater power at work in the ship's engines.

Have you heard Sir Oliver Lodge's intensely interesting and important theory as to the ether, which he looks upon as our cosmic source of power, entirely beyond our feeble minds? We are the microbes.

Unlike Herbert Spencer, Lodge believes in immortality for human beings, even immortality of personality and character. That is pleasanter for common minds than Spencer's cold decision, at the end of his life, "my intellect forbids me

FARMER KILLED

Driver of Car Held Following Accident Near Galion.

GALION, May 4—George Kleinknecht, 60, farmer, was killed Sunday at 1:30 a. m. when he was struck by a passing automobile. George Zacharisen of near Mansfield, said to be the driver of the car, is being held by the sheriff of Crawford county.

Kleinknecht was walking west on the south side of the Galion-Bucyrus road and the accident occurred in front of the home of the late Mrs. Sarah Dice.

According to Chief of Police Cook, Zacharisen, together with his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hellinger of Mansfield were going west and passed two cars when they struck Kleinknecht. The driver did not stop but continued west.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Frontz of Ashland, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. W. Reed of Mansfield, were eye witnesses to the accident and reported it at the local police station with the license of the car 78-161.

Officer Charles Ferrall drove to the scene of the accident to investigate and about 20 minutes later the Mansfield car which struck the man, passed without stopping. Ferrell chased the car and caught them on the Harding Way E. just west of Pierce street. The driver was taken to the city jail but later was taken to Bucyrus by the sheriff. Zacharisen stated they had driven to the Seccaium park and turned around.

Kleinknecht was born in Crawford county July 24, 1871, and was the son of Jacob and Permelia (Steinbaugh) Kleinknecht. He was unmarried and was employed as farmer and stone mason. For some time he resided with his brother, John Kleinknecht in Renschville.

Surviving are six brothers, Robert of Shelby; Henry of Galion; John of Renschville; Elzy of Galion; Alfred of north of Shelby, and Willis of Bucyrus, and one sister.

DO-X LANDS SAFELY AFTER LONG FLIGHT

Giant Craft Completes 950-Mile Hop to Bolama, West Africa.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, May 4—Captain Friedrich Christiansen, commander of the seaplane DO-X sent word today that he had landed at Bolama, Portuguese West Africa, at 3 p. m. (10:00 a. m., Marion time) yesterday.

The message said the trip, which was one of the longest yet essayed by the Dornier plane, was without incident.

She had flown to Bolama from Villa Cisneros, in Spanish Rio de Oro, a distance of about 950 miles.

Organization Lines Up Here Today for Annual City Cleanup Campaign

With chairmen of the various committees lining up their forces, meetings being planned and definite action outlined, Marion's cleanup campaign got under way today with one of the largest organizations of its kind in the history of the city. The campaign opened today to close when the city has been thoroughly cleaned, Mayor Jones said this morning.

19 Committees

Nineteen committees including 108 individuals, two luncheon clubs and one fraternal organization, have been enlisted in the campaign by Mayor Jones and Dr. N. Sifritt, city-county health commissioner. A large number of organizations in the city are represented on the 19 committees.

Civic pride and psychology are being depended upon to put the campaign across. It is the belief of those backing the project that when a few in each section of the city start clearing up, the movement will become contagious.

The promise of 100 men to help in cleaning up the parks made by Capt. John W. Mason, of the 166th Infantry to Mayor Jones and an offer of help made by Bryan B. Stalter of the American Legion, has been a cheering note to the backers of the movement who are optimistic in their belief that not only will the campaign result in the city receiving the most thorough cleaning it has ever experienced, but will be the means of developing civic pride that will result in a permanently cleaner city.

Cover All Phases

Practically every phase of a clean-up campaign is covered by the 19 committees, vacant lots, vacant houses and store rooms, and railroad right-of-ways having been added to program as used in other years.

Headed by the general committee consisting of Dr. N. Sifritt, general chairman, Mayor L. Don Jones, city chairman, C. R. Leavens, county chairman and Miss Ellen Kerr, secretary, the various

U. S. BUREAU TAKES PLANES FROM SERVICE

One Fokker Model Discontinued Pending Maintenance Negotiations.

RESULT OF ROCKNE CRASH

35 Planes Out on Four Lines; Fokker Confers with Officials.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 4—Assistant Secretary Young announced today that the commerce department aeronautics division has ordered discontinuance in passenger service of all Fokker F-10-AF1 airplanes in use by four air lines.

The order, which affects approximately 35 tri-motor planes, grew out of the investigation of the accident a month ago in which Knute Rockne, Notre Dame football coach and seven other persons were killed when a wing came off a plane.

Young said that the planes would not necessarily be kept out of passenger service but that the order was effective until certain matters of maintenance could be determined.

Fokker in Conference

Anthony Fokker, designer of the planes, is in Washington today for a conference with department officials regarding things that must be done to keep the planes in condition.

The commerce department order was issued simultaneously with a formal statement from the navy department announcing it had rejected a new Fokker transport airplane because it was "unstable."

The statement was issued from the office of Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics, to clear up, it said, a published suggestion that the plane had been rejected because of the criticism of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, by Anthony Fokker, its manufacturer in his book "The Flying Dutchman."

No Connection, Says Moffett

Admiral Moffett's statement said:

"There is no connection between the two incidents. Action on the plane was taken before we knew about the criticism contained in Mr. Fokker's book. The navy tests all new types of planes built for it prior to acceptance and we insist that they measure up to our requirements, especially as to safety. We have returned many planes to manufacturers for further modifications."

The series of ships in question were constructed during 1929 and have been in service since that time.

"There is no reflection of any kind upon Fokker aircraft or its basic design and original construction," the department reported.

"The only point involved is the actual maintenance of the particular ships. This phase of it will be determined as quickly as possible and the ships restored to full service."

FALL NOT TO FILE APPEAL

HAS NOTIFIED ATTORNEY

Pardon by Hoover Left as Only Avenue of Escaping Jail Term.

By The Associated Press

THREE RIVERS, N. M., May 4—Albert B. Fall looked to President Hoover today for a pardon as his only avenue of escape from a sentence of a year in jail and $10,000 fine on conviction of accepting a bribe from E. L. Doheny, oil man.

The former secretary of the interior announced yesterday he would not again appeal his sentence by a District of Columbia court in which he was found guilty on charges growing out of the leasing of naval oil reserves.

"My attorney, Mr. Frank J. Hogan," he said in a formal statement, "presumably reached Washington today on his return from a two months' absence in Europe. I am wiring him not to proceed further in the matter of my appeal to the supreme court, but to leave any further proceedings in the hands of my friends, to be handled by them as they have been doing, directly with the President. I am stating to Mr. Hogan that in the event of remote contingency of a reversal of my case, I could not undergo the strain of another trial without very probably fatal results."

Petitions have been circulated by friends in New Mexico and elsewhere asking a Presidential pardon for the former cabinet officer.

The District of Columbia court of appeals recently upheld Fall's sentence. The next step would have been application to the supreme court for a writ of error.

DEPRESSION IN BUSINESS LAID TO WORLD WAR

President Sees Military Limitation as Major Basis of Economic Recovery.

ADDRESSES CONFERENCE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 4—President Hoover today told the representatives of business from more than two score nations that further limitation and reduction of armament must be accomplished if the world is to recuperate economically and banish fears that contribute to general instability.

Welcoming the 1,000 delegates to the sixth biennial congress of the International Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Hoover said a large part of the responsibility for the existing world-wide depression must be placed on the "malign inheritances" of the World war. Armament reduction, he added, "is in the ultimate of an importance transcendent over all other forms" of international economic cooperation.

Theunis Hits High Tariff

Sharing the spotlight with President Hoover at the opening plenary session was George Theunis, of Belgium, retiring president of the chamber, who assailed high tariffs as one of the fundamental causes of the existing depression and called for more liberal customs policies by the leading nations.

M. Theunis, former Belgian prime minister, who is being succeeded in the chamber of presidency by Franz Mendelssohn, Berlin banker and grandson of the famous composer, also deplored government attempts to fix prices of farm commodities. He did not refer however, to the American farm board's dealings in wheat and cotton.

President Hoover said nearly five billion dollars was the present annual world expenditures for all arms, an increase of about 70 per cent over the pre-war figure and that 5,500,000 men were under arms and 20,000,000 more in reserve.

Cities Peace Agreement

"Yet," he added, "we are all signatories to the Kellogg-Briand pact, by which we have renounced war as an instrument of national policy and agreed to settle all controversies by pacific means."

"Surely with this understanding," he continued, "the self-defense of nations could be assured with proportionally far less military forces than these. This cast armament continued not only a burden upon the economic recuperation of the world, but, of even more consequence, the constant threats and fears which arise from it are a serious contribution to all forms of instability, whether social, political, or economic."

The President said that within a short time the principal nations

JAP AVIATOR TAKES OFF ON U. S. FLIGHT

Yoshiwara Completes First Leg of Proposed Voyage Over Pacific.

By The Associated Press

Thomas Ash, Jr., young American flier, who is in Japan planning a non-stop flight to America, said it would be "almost a miracle" if Yoshiwara succeeded, but wished the Japanese aviator good luck. Yoshiwara replied in kind, extending best wishes to Ash and adding, "but I fear he never will succeed."

Rush Is On

(Will Rogers Special)

SANTA MONICA, Calif., May 4—It's good news to know there is one industry that is flourishing. Reno Saturday just divorced everybody that had been there six weeks. They just took the hotel registers of six weeks ago that day and issued a divorce to everybody whose names were on there.

Some of them were people who had no intention of getting one but they are so rushed they haven't time to go over the lists and see who wants one and who doesn't.

They figure it's easier to let the few that didn't want one get married again. So be careful if you don't want one, don't register or ever be seen in Reno or six weeks later you will receive word you have been divorced whether you are married or not.

Yours,

Will Rogers

SEND DAMAGE CASE TO MORROW COUNTY

Action Against Shelby Concern Transferred to Mt. Gilead Court.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, May 4—A $15,000 damage action filed in the common pleas court of Richland county by Isabel Noecker against the Ohio Seamless Tube Co. has been transferred to the Morrow county common pleas court for trial at the request of Mrs Noecker's attorneys. Boyd B. Haddox and J. F Atwood of Mansfield, who claim that the case could not be fairly tried in Richland county because of the large number of stockholders in the company there.

Mrs. Noecker is the owner of a farm in Cass county. Approximately 50 acres of the land is flooded in high water by the Blackhawk fork of the Mohican river on which the Ohio Tube company's plant is located at Shelby Mrs. Noecker claims that the tube company has for eight years drained sewage from the plant into the river and that it is filled with acids contaminating the stream and ruining her land for agricultural purposes in addition to causing her to lose livestock.

The company claims that if the river was contaminated that other proprietors along the river were responsible. No date has been set for the trial of the case which will be held before Judge W. P Vaughan.

FARMALL SAVINGS INVESTMENT PLAN

This New Plan Lets Every Responsible Corn Grower Pay for His Farmall with Just a Part of the Savings the Farmall Will Make

ABUNDANT evidence in the form of actual cost records proves that farmers using Farmall tractors and full Farmall equipment are producing corn for from one-half to one-third the government average for farms with similar yields, the average saving amounting to 27½ cents a bushel.

We are so confident that the majority of farmers can get proportionate results with the Farmall that we are announcing the FARMALL SAVINGS INVESTMENT PLAN, under which responsible farmers can purchase a Farmall and Farmall equipment now and meet the first payment this fall with just a part of the savings made possible by the new equipment in the production of their corn crop—with two more years to pay the balance.

Here is an opportunity for you to take advantage of Farmall savings during the balance of the corn growing and harvesting season—planting from 20 to 45 acres a day and cultivating 30 to 65 acres a day with 2- or 4-row equipment—and be ready next year to make the maximum saving throughout the entire year. And don't overlook the extra savings you will make in the handling of your hay, grain, and all other crops requiring power.

Every one of these jobs can be done faster and at lower costs with a Farmall and Farmall equipment, effecting substantial savings on every crop, yet all you pay is part of the savings made on the corn alone as a first payment this fall.

See your McCormick-Deering dealer for full details of the FARMALL SAVINGS INVESTMENT PLAN. A convincing demonstration of the Farmall and seasonable equipment will be made on your own farm on request.

Roberts of 244 Orchard street, and Howard Orr, son of Mrs. Ida Orr of 187 Olney avenue, was made at a charming luncheon last evening at the Roberts home. Miss Roberts has chosen pink and green for her bridal colors and these shades carried out a lovely color note in the table decorations. Candles lighted the table which was centered with spring flowers, and individual candles in the same shades marked the places. Guests included Miss Crystal Orr of Dayton, Misses Ethel Baker, Imo Hornby and Florence Orr.

of the world will meet to discuss the broad questions of reduction in land arament" and urged business men to "insist that this problem shall be met with sincercity, courage and constructive action."

Proposals to decrease armament, he said, transcend all others advanced for world economic rehabilitation. He interpreted the annual world expenditure of $5,000,000,000 on arms as not only a threat to business recuperation but "a serious contribution to all forms of instability, whether social, political or economics."

Important to U. S.

While the United States is not directly concerned about land force decreases, Mr. Hoover said, "We have, however, a vast indirect interest in greater assurance of peace, order and the increased arder and the increased economic prosperity of other nations.'

"I bid you welcome to the United States. You have come from many lands and at a time of grave responsibilities at home to participate in discussions that will contribute to world advancement. The consideration and discussion of world-wide economic problems and of the economic relations between nations by men who have had to deal with the results of economic forces can be most helpful to world understanding and world cooperation in their solution.

"It is needless for me to emphasize the high degree of economic interdependence of the world—we require no more emphatic demonstration than the present world-wide depression. Although the United States enjoys a far greater economic independence than any other large country, yet we have been gravely affected by world forces.

'This is not an occasion for review of the action and inter-action of such a multitude of forces, but I do wish to give emphasis to one of these war inheritances in which international cooperation can effect a major accomplishment in reducing the tax burdens of the world, removing a primary cause of unrest and establishing greater confidence for the long future. That is the limitation and reduction of

Hemorrhoids

How to End Painful Piles Without Salves or Cutting

Itching, bleeding, protruding piles are caused by bad circulation of the blood in the affected parts. The parts become weak, flabby, almost dead. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause—that's why salves, suppositories and cutting fail. Dr. Leonhardt's prescription, HEM-ROID, succeeds because it removes congestion, restores circulation, heals and strengthens the diseased parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record of quickly ending even piles of long standing, that Henney & Cooper says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your pile agony or money back.—Adv.

CHAPTER 13

Julian's "Fine Family"

JONATHON left her at the station to look up the address of the apartment and soon they were driving along the busy thoroughfare in a taxi.

"I haven't seen Aunt Emily since she was eight," Nora explained. "I remember only that they live in an enormous house with a great many servants."

"Fine," Jon said indifferently. "I don't think I've heard of any Durants here."

"If they have not heard of them they have cast forever into outer darkness."

My grandfather was governor of the state," Nora said, her cheeks hot, but driving herself on.

Jon made some polite sound of interest. They had passed through the business section of the town and rode on through narrow avenues where trolleys whined by and signs showed between frowsy curtains. This was the kind of neighborhood in which women wore their kitchen aprons under their coats and hurried to market with string bags on their arms. The street lamps were lighted and the trees proclaimed to all these faded house fronts that it was spring. The taxi stopped with a jolt in this bedragged neighborhood.

"Here we are," Jon cried with relief.

Jon was paying the taxi driver, tumbling her bags out on the sidewalk while Nora looked about her.

Dove street was in the older part of the city, and must once have known a certain fine dignity. But small shops had edged in between the red brick, high-stooped houses. She saw the house in front of her bore a brown sign with faded letters that announced

STUDIO OF MUSIC

This red brick house had one window on the sidewalk barred off with an iron grating; in the window above was a polished brass plate with the name Fergus More, M. D.

This could not be the house. There was some mistake. Julian had told her of the stately white house where his sister lived.

"My father's people couldn't live here!"

"We'll try this anyway."

Jon was stubborn as well as arrogant. He supposed, of course, because she was shabby, that her people would live in this wretched place.

Nora stood staring at the door while Jon rang the bell. Suddenly she was a small girl again, shrinking with sensitiveness, a sick feeling at the pit of her stomach.

Jonathan Thayer tapped the step with his foot as though he were impatient to have the whole thing over. The next minute the door was opened by a young man who eyed them eagerly.

"I am Dr. More."

"Does a Mrs. Durant live here? Emily Durant?" Nora cried.

The interest died out of the young man's face. He nodded and said he believed Mrs. Durant was in. If they would go straight down the hall.

This dark narrow hall had a flight of scuffed bare stairs leading up from it. It was dreary and poverty-stricken. Jon moved sideways with the bags so that the first glimpse Nora had was into a large, shabby, book-filled room.

These were her father's people. Her Aunt Emily here beside the lamp, a woman with deep lines graven into her face and live dark eyes. Her cousin Frances, dark and lovely, who stood with a violin pressed against her shoulder, and, as Nora stepped forward and they lifted startled faces to her, she saw her older cousin Hallet rise suddenly and move grotesquely, and uncertainly on crippled feet, toward her.

But it was Aunt Emily who reached her first and took her into a warm embrace.

"It's Nora, isn't it? We hoped you would come straight to us!"

Nora introduced Jon Thayer to them. She had a strong impression of her father's family. Of a searching poverty that brought back her own childhood with its dirt and drudgery and petty pretense. Her father had known all the time that his sister and her children were middle-class people. No matter what hardships she had gone through she had always bolstered up her courage with the knowledge that her father came of a fine old family. This, then, was the truth.

Nora heard a controversy raging behind her. Jon must hear it too.

"She can have my room."

"But where will you sleep?"

"She can't sleep in Fran's room with the children. They'll keep her awake. I can sleep on a cot in the store room."

"She can have my room!" a small fair child cried.

Aunt Em waved them all to silence. She told Nora that Frances would take her upstairs at once. Frances went ahead up the stairs while Jon followed with the bags.

Nora was so worn out now from the emotional strain that even the flight of bare scuffed stairs seemed like a conquest. Up the first flight, up the second, where Frances stood waiting in a lighted attic room, so exquisitely clean and bare its poverty smote her afresh. Jon put down her bags and stood waiting to say good-by to her. She knew he was pitying her. She stood staring with angry brows at the picture on the bare walls. Watt's Hope. What a forlorn creature!

Jon said with a compassionate smile that made her dislike him even more violently, "I'll come for you tomorrow afternoon then?"

She would have liked to tell him that she never wanted to see him again. But Jon was only eager to be off; and after saying good-night to her cousin he turned and ran down the stairs as though he were rid of a painful duty.

She wondered if he were not saying to himself, "Thank God, that's over!"

To Be Continued.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

YESTERDAY wasn't just another Sunday. Not for me. It was a humdinger of a Sunday. For me, Jubilee knows it was, and my father and mother and unkle and ant and grandfather would say it was if they knowed about it, but it is something I hope they won't find out. The cows would know it too if they had strange hands pulling at their handles this morning, which was Monday morning.

I got out of bed yesterday and put Jubilee out of the window and let him down, and then I put on my short britches and went down and milked the dummed brutes and strained the milk and fed my face, and then I got washed by my ant, with Feeble and Youniss and Maggie standing around and saying things, like they do every Sunday morning. I wonder how they would like it if every Sunday morning they had an ant to pull their clothes down over their shoulders all the way to their waists and me and two other fellows would stand around saying things about their shapes and the way they hollered when their ants hung onto their ears. Girls aren't so very brite.

After Sunday school we made it up that we would go out to the clifft above the lake in Wenham's grove, and when we got there the tall old tree was still standing on the edge of the clifft, and the long rope we had tied to a high limb with the bottom end of the rope tied to the middle of the stick, and it was funny that it had hung there all winter and no one had swiped it, and I thought I would get hold of the stick like we used to do when we first put it up and swing out over the lake and back. Youniss didn't want me to do it, but the rest of the bunch dasted me, so I got hold of the stick and pulled it as far back from the edge of the clifft as far as it would go, and then I ran as hard as I could and swang away out over the lake, and when I got as far out as it would go the rope let go of the branch like it had never been tied there and away I went!

I felt myself turning over about a million times, and then I hit the water head first and must have went down almost to the bottom of the lake, and the water was so cold I couldn't breathe when I came up but all my legs and arms was working, and I swum around the corner of the cliffi to the beach. The bunch was certainly scairt. Me too, and Jubilee. He got to me first. Then we made a fire of driftwood to dry my clothes. I still hung onto the rope, and it was so rotten we could pull it apart. I was lucky the lake had got done being froze over.

Today was Monday, and I was glad I was here to milk my cows and go to school, and that no one told my father.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Mother Graham Announces That the Baby's Name Shall Be Faith!

MOTHER GRAHAM is taller and more slender than was Queen Victoria, but Dicky has always declared that in her mental characteristics she is akin to the late Queen of Great Britain and Empress of India. Her dignity, her imperious manner, her refusal to brook contradiction, all these traits, regarded by the family with kindly amusement sometimes tinged by irritation, have been molded so her son insists upon her mental image of the great English queen.

"She never saw the Widder at Windsor," Dicky frequently says, "but she admired her so much that she's been using her for a pattern for years. If she didn't have an unusual strain of caution in her makeup, she'd have broken her neck years ago in imitating Vic's supposed custom of sitting down without turning her head to see if her chair was in its place.

Mother's Announcement

As I turned, startled, to my mother-in-law, at her imperious request to stop the music as she had an important announcement to make, I was reminded by Dicky's dancing eyes of the comment he so frequently made. He had just returned from telling Junior and Roderick one of his inimitable yarns as a compensation for their having to go to bed at their usual time while the older young people were dancing, and was standing behind my mother-in-law and my father when she spoke. But the next instant the twinkle died, he looked from his mother to me and back again and I saw something very like resentment settle upon his face.

If it were an attentive audience Mother Graham wished, she had next instant the twinkle died, he people, it is true, had not heard her, but Harry Underwood made two strides to the phonograph, turned it off, and grasping the arms of Mary and Bill, the couple nearest him, swung them around facing their grandmother, while Lillian imitated his action with Marion and Hank.

Mother Graham's eyes went from one to another of the group till she was satisfied that everyone's attention was properly focused upon her. Then she spoke slowly, impressively.

"I want to tell you," she said, "that our new darling baby is no longer without a name. She is to be called 'Faith.'"

She paused and her eyes rested upon every face in the room as if gauging the effect of her announcement. With united banality, the elders murmured dutifully: "What a beautiful name!" The boys stared as if wondering why the dancing had been interrupted, but Mary and Marion were emphatic in their approval.

"It's about time that child had a name," Mary said, "and that's surely a dandy."

"It's simply swell, Grandma Graham," Marion said. "There's a girl at school named 'Faith' and the rest of us spend our time wishing our parents had named us that."

My mother-in-law's brows knitted into a slight but unmistakable frown.

"It is not a question of the beauty of the name," she said coldly, "although I admit that it is beautiful, but of its suitability. I hold to the old-fashioned custom of giving children family names which have been handed down from generation to generation. Harriet is such a name, and so in another branch of my family is Faith. My little granddaughter will be the fourth in my family to bear the name, and therefore I have been very glad to find out that Margaret's father is satisfied and approves it."

She turned to my father and made him a stately little bow which he returned gravely, although before his mind as before ours must have flashed that inimitable scene in the New York revival of Ten Nights in a Barroom, when the reformed drunkard and the local soprano, bow to each other at the end of the last verse of "In the Gloaming." Dicky and Harry would have been ejected from the theater at that finale, if all their neighbors, including Lillian and me, had not also been in paroxysms of mirth. And I think it was to the credit of all of us that no shadow of a smile appeared upon our faces.

"Good night, all," my mother-in-law said grandly. "I shall steal a look at little Faith and then go to bed."

"Permit me," my father said, forestalling Dicky and with his hand under her elbow, she went out of the room and up the stairs.

"May we dance again?" Hank asked impatiently.

"Surely," I answered for I saw by Dicky's face that something would be needed to camouflage the remarks that seemed literally to be trembling on his tongue.

The phonograph blared, and the young people swept into the dance again, oblivious of everything else. Dicky caught me by the arm and walked with me swiftly toward Harry and Lillian.

"Look here, Folks," he said, half humorously, half angry, "I need reassurance. I was under the impression that Madge had this baby upstairs, that she belonged to us and that we had some little say about her. Or am I all wet."

Fast Base Running Gives Brooklyn 4-3 Win Over Giants

WES FERRELL TURNS IN FIFTH VICTORY BY BEATING TIGERS, 7-4

Cleveland Ace Has Stormy First Inning, but Stems Attack Later.

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

By a bit of fast base running, the Brooklyn Robins beat the Giants yesterday, 4 to 3.

Fresno Thompson was perched on second base in the seventh inning, when Lefty O'Doul smacked a roller to Bill Terry at first. Thompson lit out and seeing Terry fumble momentarily, didn't even slow up rounding third. He beat a perfect throw to the plate by an eyelash, winning the Robins their third straight victory.

The defeat was costly to the Giants, who lost ground in their fight for the National league top as St. Louis made it three straight over Chicago, 5 to 4.

The Boston Braves missed an opportunity to move into third place when they dropped their fourth straight to the Phillies, 4 to 1. Ray Benge held the Braves to six hits. Whitney nicked Seibold for a homer with one on.

Cincinnati finally registered victory No. 2, defeating Pittsburgh 10 to 5, in the second game of a double header after the Pirates had won the first, 6 to 3.

Al Simmons went on one of his well known hitting sprees to give the Athletics a 3 to 1 victory over Washington in their opener. His triple drove a run across in the first inning and he added a homer for good measure in the ninth.

The Yankees hailed Babe Ruth's return to the lineup with an 8-to-3 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. Ruth played six innings and hit a pair of singles, getting around nicely on his injured leg.

A big sixth inning, in which they scored seven runs and drove Thomas from the hill, enabled the St. Louis Browns to down Chicago, 9 to 5, and break a nine-game losing streak.

Wes Ferrell, the no-hit, no-run hero of a few days back, had a stormy first inning against Detroit, but struck it out to register his fifth win, 7 to 4.

INTRA-CHURCH BATTLE

The Central Christian No 1 and Central Christian Seniors recreation ball teams will stage a strictly intra-church battle Tuesday at 6 p. m. on the McKinley park diamond. This is the first time the two teams have met this year. Both are members of the Sunday school No. 2 league.

TWO TEAMS FIGURED IN RACE FOR CROWN

Another Pair Loom as Dark Horses in No. 2 Sunday School League Softball.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

WITH competition in the league scheduled to get under way exactly a week from today there are four teams in the No. 2 Sunday School recreation ball league which appear to have a possible chance of winning the league championship. Of these four, two loom as slight favorites to outdistance the pack and battle it out for the league title.

The four teams that do not come in for consideration as pennant contenders will fight a battle among themselves to keep from ending the season in the cellar of the league.

Foremost among the contenders for the championship is Forest Lawn Presbyterians and its sister church of the same denominative, the First Presbyterians. Trailing these two closely are the Wesley M. E. and the Central Christian No. 1 teams. Either of these latter two may surprise league followers and ease into first or second place before the end of the season. Wesley M. E. has been threatening for several seasons to crash through for a title and the Christians should go plenty tough in No. 2 league competition. The Christians are playing their first season in the league, having been moved there from the No. 1 league at the end of last season.

Others Are Weak

As far as the rest of the entries in the league are concerned it should be a battle for positions lower than fourth place. One of the remaining four, Central Christian Seniors may possibly be able to batter its way into a first division post. The other three, United Brethren, First Reformed and St. Paul Lutheran are prohibitive favorites to fight it out for the last three places. One is about as strong as the other, so there is little to choose between them.

Forest Lawn and First Presbyterians should put on a battle royal for the championship of the league. The former lot out to the Lee Street Presbyterians last season only by faltering in the last half of the season. Manager Jim O'Dowd has practically all of his 1930 lineup back this year and also has a couple of new players that will bolster some of the weaker spots on the team. A lot of his team's success depends on whether Milt Kellogg can hold up the batting burden.

Presbies Improved

The First Presbyterians will undoubtedly be the most improved team in the circuit. Paul Gastner the new manager of the Presbies, has dug up several new ball players and the spirit of the Presbyterians is at a higher pitch than at any time for the last several seasons.

The hurling staff of the Presbyterians, the weakest part of the team in 1930, has been bolstered considerably by the addition of Don Shoemaker, first string pitcher of the city champions Erie Hourglouse team last year.

The Wesley M. E. team will play with nearly the same starting lineup as last year but this will be tough enough to cause difficulty for any entry in the circuit. Wesley has been threatening for several years to come through for the pennant but has never had quite enough punch. It doesn't look like the necessary punch has been acquired yet but the team may be strong enough to throw the league race into something of a free-for-all before the campaign is completed.

Banking on Amick

The Central Christian Seniors are banking on the return to form of Art Amick and the addition of several new men to keep them high in the race. The team is playing this year under a new manager, Paul Rice. Amick, the team's leading pitcher, was hadicapped by injuries all of last season but is apparenty ready to go the route this season.

The three Sunday school teams picked to end the season in the last three league berths are handicapped by having to pick their teams from smaller enrollment than most of the other entries. Without the acquiring of additional strength the three cannot hope to go far in the league. However, any one of the three are strong enough to stage an upset once in awhile and keep activity in the league from degenerating into the spiritless state that comes when victory for one team and defeat for another is a forgone conclusion.

MORRAL NINE BEATS MARION IN SEASON LID-LIFTER SUNDAY

Ragged Fielding, Poor Base Running Features First Game of Year.

Marion and Morral opened the local baseball season yesterday afternoon at Lincoln park with Morral taking a ragged exhibition 8 to 5. The teams are both members of the newly organized Rural Community baseball league. Other members of the league are Sunbury, Delaware, Hilliards of Columbus and Prospect.

Ragged fielding and sloppy base running featured the Marion-Morral encounter. A total of 13 fielding errors were committed during the course of the game, of which an even dozen were made by Marion players. Conroy, Marion catcher, had four bobbles while Marshall, right fielder, and Longshore, pitcher, each had three against them. Both teams hammered out 10 hits apiece.

ST. PAUL WINS FIRST GAME OF SERIES, 7-1

Louisville Drops Lead by Defeat; Columbus Loses to Milwaukee.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 4—St. Paul today had the edge over Louisville in the first "crucial" series of the American Association season, and was in the lead by a percentage point margin.

The Saints yesterday gained the lead by taking the first game of the series from the Colonels, 7 to 1, behind the excellent pitching of Bryan "Slim" Harriss.

Rubber Jonnard gave one of the best pitching exhibitions of the season in hurling Milwaukee to a 3 to 0 triumph over Columbus. The Brewer southpaw gave only three hits and fanned nine batsmen.

Indianapolis won two games during the week-end, defeating St. Paul 15 to 4, Saturday and winning a comical affair from Minneapolis yesterday, 17 to 11.

Six Toledo pitchers were unable to halt Kansas City yesterday and the Blues won the series opener, 18 to 6. Carl Mays started for the Mud Hens and was followed by Alex Ferguson, Elam Van Gilder, Bachman, Richardson and Tate.

FOUR GAMES BOOKED

Epworth Bishops Meet John Clark Twice This Week.

Four games confront the Epworth Bishops' recreation ball team as the club goes into the final week of practice before the opening of league competition on May 12. Games are booked for Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

Today at 6 p. m. the Methodists will clash with the Kappas of the Commercial league on the Lincoln park diamond. On Friday night they are booked to meet First Reformed of the No. 2 Sunday school league.

The Tuesday and Thursday games, both at the Steam Shovel grounds are the high spots of the week's schedule. The team will play John Clark's Epworth No. 1 team for the class championship. In event of a split in the two games the first round game of the league season between the two will be the deciding encounter. Last season the Bishops took two out of three from Clark for the class title.

Rough Match Probable in Shovel Mat Show Tonight

Roughneck night will be observed at the Shovel gym tonight when what promises to be one of the roughest wrestling shows of the season will be staged.

In the main-go event Clyde Robinson and Nick Bozinis will settle their differences in a two-fall-out-of-three bout. This is being billed as a natural by promoters.

Robinson and Bozinis have been at odds since the latter is alleged to have run out on a match here several weeks ago. Robinson claimed that Nick was afraid to meet him while Bozinis came through with an alibi which satisfied the boxing commission.

Plenty of action is promised in the semi-final bout of 30 minutes with one fall to win. It will bring together two fast boys in Joe Montana and Roy Duncan.

In addition to the two feature attractions, promoters have arranged two preliminaries. The advance sale of tickets indicates an unusually large crowd will witness the battles.

BAER TO MEET RISKO

CLEVELAND, O., May 4—Max Baer gets a chance to re-establish himself as a heavyweight contender in a 10 round bout tomorrow night with the veteran Johnny Risko. There will be four six round heavyweight preliminaries.

COLONEL HOOFER CERTAINLY IS HAPPY BECAUSE "LARRY CRIX" WON HIS FIGHT LAST WEEK, CASPER!
WHY SHOULDN'T HE BE, TOOTS? THEY GO 50-50 ON ALL PROFITS, AND HE THINKS LARRY WILL BE THE CHAMPION INSIDE OF A YEAR!
YOU'D BETTER RE-CONSIDER MY OFFER, COLONEL! I'LL GIVE YOU $25,000.00 CASH FOR A HALF INTEREST IN YOUR CONTRACT WITH LARRY CHIX, AND THE MONEY IS YOURS AS SOON AS THE PAPERS ARE SIGNED!
THANKS FOR THE OFFER, BUT I'M NOT INTERESTED!
DO YOU MEAN TO SAY YOU TURNED DOWN AN OFFER OF $25,000.00 CASH FOR HALF OF YOUR CONTRACT WITH LARRY?
MY SHARE OF LARRY'S EARNINGS IN THE NEXT TWELVE MONTHS WILL AMOUNT TO NEARLY A MILLION DOLLARS, CASPER! WHY SHOULD I SIGN OVER HALF OF THAT FOR A MERE $25,000.00?
I'M NO SMARTER THAN THE NEXT FELLOW, CASPER, BUT I'LL GET ALONG BETTER BECAUSE I WORK HARDER AND KEEP MY EYES OPEN A LITTLE WIDER!
IF YOU WERE SMART YOU'D REMEMBER THAT A BIRD IN THE HAND IS WORTH

U. S. Defeats Mexico in Davis Cup Competition

By The Associated Press

MEXICO CITY, May 4—The fine trio of tennis players representing the United States were a step nearer the Davis cup finals today as a result of a sweeping victory over Mexico, but they had to share some of the honors of their first tie with a young opponent, Ricardo Tapia

Tapia, only 20 years old and lacking the tournament experience which made his rivals almost unbeatable, played with brilliance that threatened to cause trouble for the United States players as they swept through into the North American zone final by winning three straight matches. In singles and doubles, Tapia could not ever win a set, but he succeeded in making most of them hard for his rival. Tennis followers agreed that the frail little Mexican showed great promise for future Davis cup battles

Copper Market Unsettled

Heaviness of the copper shares reflected news of considerable demoralization of the market for red metal and the annual report of Anaconda showing a deficit of about $14,000,000 after payment of common dividends and the setting up of reserves against the drop in prices of inventories. Copper metal was finally dropped below the 26-year low price of 9½ cents established last autumn.

Despite the still unpromising outlook for many industries, however, Wall street was able to view the situation more calmly than for several years. The sharp setback late Friday after the apparent selling climax of Wednesday and Thursday, had followed so suddenly as to cause misgivings, but in important banking circles, it is stated quite emphatically that troublesome matters have been generally smothered out, and that the Friday setback was in part a maneuver of bears to cover their commitments at less costly levels.

Call money was again firm at 1½ per cent, presumably reflecting the return to the banks of month-end settlement checks.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

This morning found merchants and produce dealers carrying over but comparatively small stocks from Saturday, and with but little change in prices. Fresh supplies were coming in this morning with little prospects of an immediate price advance, dealers say.

Pineapples are holding at from 25 to 30 cents and strawberries at from 15 to 20 cents a pint and from 26 to 30 cents a quart. Dealers report good sales in both Saturday with the supply about normal.

An advance of one cent was reported in eggs today and grocers were offering strictly fresh eggs at from 18 to 25 cents, Saturday's unusual low prices having been replaced by the more normal prices. A slight dropping off in the supply was given by dealers today as the cause for the advance.

RAIN REPORTS CAUSE DECLINE

Grains Average Lower When Showers Are Reported in Canada.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 4—Influenced by reports of showers in Canada, grain prices averaged lower early today. Declines, however, were checked by indications that moisture was not sufficient to furnish adequate relief from drouth. Opening at ⅝ cents off to ⅛ up wheat afterward held near to the initial range. Corn started at ⅛ decline to ⅜ advance and subsequently sagged all around.

Supplementing the bearish effects of light rain and snow in Canada tending to allay uneasiness over prolonged abnormal dryness were enlarged quantities of wheat on ocean passage. The amount of wheat afloat for Europe was 45,056,000 bushels, compared with 46,658,000 a week ago and 34,608,000 at this time last year. On the other hand, crop experts emphasized need of frequent generous downpours, both south and north of the Canadian boundary.

A leading authority advised from Bradley, S. D., that conditions looked unfavorable for an average wheat crop in the American northwest and that conditions were worse over much of the Canadian belt. He said that only one inch of moisture had been received at Bradley since last October. Corn and oats were responsive to wheat downturns.

Provisions reflected lower hog values.

KANT NOTE FOUND

By International News Service

KOENIGSBERG, Germany — That Immanuel Kant, the great philosopher, was a fundamentalist is shown by a brief consideration of the age of the world, written by him on the flyleaf of the Bible, which has just been added to the Kantiana of the Koenigsberg State and University Library. In writing so fine that it can be read only with a magnifying glass, the philosopher recorded his conclusion that the world was created about 4004 B. C. The Bible, a small, leatherbound volume printed at Basle in 1751, is full of marginal notes from Kant's hand.

NOTED BEAUTY MAY ENTER CONVENT

LIFE SHE PLANS TO FORSAKE

By International News Service

NEW YORK —From the boardwalks at Atlantic City, N. J., gaily bedecked with bunting and flags, to the bright lights of Broadway has been the path of Dorothy Knapp.

Long carressed by the plaudits of enchanted audiences in leading New York theaters, this girl, whose perfect form and charming face won for her the title of Miss Venus, of America, has decided to forego the purple pomp of the world, to foresake the footlights, for the calm seclusion of the cloister.

Dorothy Knapp made her first entrance into the haven of fame through the portals of the Follies, which position she secured after Flo Ziegfeld saw the famed bathing beauty winner. He stated she was the best formed girl he had ever seen. Howard Chandler Christy made her famous as a model. Then came another pinnacle in theatrical fame, when she became a star in Earl Carroll's Vanities. Still another big event in her life was the day she signed her name on the dotted line, which provided her appearance in a film production entitled, "None but the Brave."

* * *

NOW this professional beauty, with a first place in the glittering pageantry of the theater, solaced by the ease of a colorful career purchasable with a salary of $1000 a week, yearns not for greater glory, for a continuance of her name emblazoned on the glittering lights of Broadway, but yearns humbly for the meditative life of a cloistered nun in the Roman Catholic faith.

"I have found that Broadway and Hollywood hold nothing but the fleshpots. When I was on the heights in Broadway, always there was within me a feeling that God was calling me. It is something I cannot explain.

Thus she explained her turn from theatrical life to religion.

Close friends of the beauty assert there is no mistaking the simple genuineness of her convictions. Her famous brown eyes hold a softer, sweeter, more placid light.

MISS KNAPP would not disclose where she intends to take her preliminary instructions for a postulant, nor when she would decide to forever close behind her the doors of the outer world.

For Mrs Anne W Penfield, widow of Woodrow Wilson's Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, against whom she has a suit of $200,000, whom she accused of having caused her dismissal from the cast of Earl Carroll's ill-fated musical comedy, "Fiorotta" she had only the kindliest things to say.

SAND DUNE MEMORIAL

By International News Service

ALAMOSA, Colo. — The sand dunes of the San Luis valley, 60 square miles of brilliant constantly shifting drifts, rivalling the deserts of Arabia in their lure and mystery, will become a national monument if plans being made by Alamosa and Monte Vista civic groups are carried out. The present session of the Colorado legislature has before it a proposal to memorialize congress to take over the dunes as a national monument. Data is being gathered concerning the early history of the dunes.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, May 5

THE astrological influences for this day must be interpreted as decidedly conflicting.

While entirely new projects are under benefic sway, and all things relating to industry, labor, property and kindred affairs should have moderate success, yet employment is poorly aspected and shows hostility and danger. Writings are in peril and much may be suffered through impetuousity and quarrels.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of success in new ventures, in labor, industry or property, but employment is under hostile ray writings are in jeopardy and indulgence in quarrels, passion and turbulence may bring sorrow and defeat. A child born on this day should have many excellent traits for success, should be diligent and hard-working, but may invite its undoing by a tendency to rash and tumultous behavior and an ungoverned tongue.

IOWA GRANDMA WINS DEGREE IN EUROPE

University of Paris Grants Award to American for Thesis on Comte.

PARIS — An Iowa grandma has just been awarded a very high French honor. Mrs. Mecca M. Varney, of Glenwood, Iowa, has just received her dortorate from the University of Paris with the mention "very honorable."

Mrs. Varney came to Paris four years ago with her son and daughter-in-law who also studied at the Sorbonne. She was obliged to learn sufficiently well to do a large amount of research work, write it and speak it in order to defend her thesis before the judges. She wrote the book "L'Influence des Femmes sur Auguste Comte" entirely alone and took it before the jury without polishing up by French scholars.

Perhaps it was this sincerity and frankness that won their hearts. At any rate, they all pronounced her thesis a very sound piece of writing and found that the American grandma from Iowa had treated Comte and the various influence of women in his life with such merit that the document was put in the class of real literature.

Mrs. Varney is an ordained minister in the Universalist and Christian churches and is the widow of Chaplain Charles E. Varney, well-known to Chautauqua circles in America.

POISON GAS DEATHS IN BELGIUM SOLVED

"Factory Gas" Credited with Causing Heavy Loss of Life.

MUNICH—The mystery of the death fog in Belgium, in which sixty-three Belgians lost their lives and many were seriously poisoned last December, has been solved, according to Professor Storm van Leeuwen.

In an article in the "Munich Medicinal Weekly" Professor van Leeuwen declares that the death fog is due to what he calls "factory gas."

"From December 1st to December 3rd," the professor explains, "a dense fog prevailed in the Liege district. The air was very cold while the sun was shining in higher areas. The cold air, therefore, could not rise so that a ventilation in vertical direction was impossible. As the wind was very calm there was no horizontal ventilation, either. Nearby factories produce zinc and superphosphat and the poisonous gas which is brought about in the process and ordinarily rises up in the air, conglomerated.

"Finally, on Wednesday, December 3rd, the amount of gas in the air became greater than human being can stand. While, under ordinary circumstances, the inhabitants of this district only suffered from slight catarrhs sometimes due to the gas filled air, this time the gas fog had deadly effects."

Professor van Leeuwen's explanation of the death fog is bound to cause considerable uneasiness as weather conditions like those which prevailed near Liege may occur in practically every factory district, thus endangering all the workers and the inhabitants nearby.

NATURAL FURNACES MAY FURNISH HEAT

Iceland Wells Supplying Hot Water to Buildings and Homes.

By International News Service

PITTSBURGH — Natural furnaces in Iceland, hundreds of feet below the surface of sub-arctic Iceland, may prove the forerunners of new developments by heating and ventilating engineers.

A report placed before the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers convention here outlined plans for extensive exploiting of the hot springs of Iceland for use as natural heating systems.

"Wells are drilled to varying depths and hot water gushes from them," declared the report of Ben Grondal, of Iceland. "It is simple to pipe the water to homes and buildings."

Reykjavik, the capital, already is heating equipped for the natural "furnaces" and other cities will follow suit.

The report pointed out that while women for centuries have washed clothes at the hot springs which dot Iceland, actual development of the home-heating idea has been started only during the past year.

"If properly utilized, the hot water underlying Iceland may make the island independent of all importations of fuel," the report predicted.

UNIQUE MONUMENT

HEIDELBERG, Germany — The era when cannonballs were made out of stone is being commemorated in a pyramid which is being erected here in the court of the former royal stables. Some 50 balls of shell limestone form the unique monument. They were found in the city and date from bombardments around the year 1500.

Parasite Causing Malaria Now Used in West To Cure Paresis

By International News Service

DENVER — Down south they erected a monument to the boll weevil because it saved the farmers from economic disasters resulting from total dependence on a one-crop system. Colorado taxpayers may in time erect a monument to Plasmodium Vivax, the parasite which causes malaria.

Just what the taxpayers of Colorado owe Plasmodium Vivax can not be estimated accurately in dollars and cents. Physicians attached to the Colorado Psychopathic hospital assert that 220 human lives and at least $100,000 in cash have been saved to the state by the organism.

Plasmodium Vivax causes malaria, a disagreeable tropical disease characterized by alternate chills and fever. Also, physicians now believe it cures paresis.

Paresis, before the discovery of the malaria treatment took a toll in lives of 100 per cent of its victims. Recovery was practically unknown to

Man Who Thrilled Marion Circus Crowd Still Rules Savage Beasts

This article will be of especial interest to residents of Marion and vicinity, not only because Clyde Beatty, the young man about whom it is written, is a native of Ohio, but because he performed here with a circus less than a year ago. His act will be remembered by the thousands of spectators as one of the most thrilling ever staged before a circus crowd here. Lion taming, according to Beatty, has, like all other pursuits, its ups and downs. He daily demonstrates before circus fans and during rehearsal that the mighty king of the jungle has met a master. Not content with making lions and tigers go through their paces for the amusement of a thrill loving audience, this 24-year-old young man from Chillicothe, O., locks himself into a cage full of lions and tigers, all ready to pounce on him if he should show the slightest sign of wavering. He is unable to describe the power which he holds over the savage beasts but asserts that fearlessly looking a wild beast in the eye will many times calm him. Still, he does not advise a foolhardy attempt at this as a means of safety. Neither does he advise others to emulate him.

By International News Service

NEW YORK—If "music hath charms to soothe the savage breast," so also hath young Clyde Beatty, star trainer of the Ringling Brothers circus.

How few of the many who enjoy the circus realize the dangers to which this young man of 24, with light brown hair, gray eyes set wide apart and a rather pale face, decorated with freckles, exposes himself daily. The gray eyes are not alone his fortune, but they are also his life insurance. With a coolness which utterly disregards his dangerous vocation, Betty tells that looking a wild beast of the jungle in the eye is enough to soothe the savage animal. Then well may he claim that his eyes are his fortune. The least wavering glance may break the hypnotic power through which he retains mastery of the savage beasts

Began in Cincinnati Zoo

Born in Chillicothe, O., at an early age he developed an interest in animals He got his start at the Cincinnati Zoo Actively, as a boy, he began with horses, and when this grew too tame for his adventurous spirit, he took up with bears. These in turn palled and attracted by the majesty of the king of the jungle, he took to lions Tiring of them, he decided to make lions and tigers his charge Since that time, he has had no complaint of lack of thrills

Each day he puts 25 lions and 10 tigers through their paces at the circus, all of whom are ready to jump on him and end his life of adventure, if he should show the least sign of wavering The majestic lion, whose mighty roar quakes the air in the vast auditorium of Madison Square Garden, many times an unwilling performer, admits the supremacy of this modern Daniel, who locks himself in a cage among the growling beasts. The treacherous tiger, too, crawls to him and at a command topples over. Beatty is as much at home sitting on the back of a large lion, as he was in early youth on the back of one of the patient horses at Cincinnati Zoo.

Of the future he is indifferent He says that he probably will go the way of all other trainers Beatty remarks that perhaps he will grow careless and thus write finis to a thrilling and dangerous life.

Recent Narrow Escape

This almost happened in Madison Square Garden a few days ago. The daring young man, in white riding clothes, turned his back for a moment to lash a charging tiger into a cowed house cat. From above and behind a great Nubian lion, black-maned, wicked and cunning, took a chance, leaped and struck downward and outward with a savage swishing stroke of his right forepaw.

Young Beatty, on his toes, moving like a dancer, in this grim battle for life, turning, twisting, steel springs for feet, caught out of the corner of an eye the shadow of the leaping lion, and sprang to safety Then began a duel, which was witnessed only by circus folk going through the routine of their acts—a duel between the two, man and lion—which lasted for 10 minutes The thick impact of the leather thong could be heard through the arena—the breathing of the circus people, who stopped in their rehearsal, knowing that young Beatty was playing with death The strange duel ended by Beatty driving his 25 lions and 10 tigers—all leaning forward, mouths open, red tongues showing behind daggers of ivory—every savage beast eager and ready for trouble.

It was a thriller, but perhaps it may be an omen But as this daring young man who charms away the ferocity of his charges and single-handed wrests victory from the mighty paws of the king of the jungle remarks

"Never get careless the best way to protect yourself is not to let anything get started or get too far

WEIGHT AS A MEASURE OF TIRE QUALITY IS NOT INCLUDED IN THIS TABLE FOR TWO REASONS:

1st, Because no two tires of the same brand and size weigh exactly alike, and

2nd, Because quality of rubber and cotton fabric used, rather than the compounded weight after being mixed with other ingredients is the determining factor. Reclaimed or second hand rubber weighs more than new rubber. Tires containing a large percentage of second hand rubber, therefore, weigh more than those made entirely of new rubber—even though the tires are exactly alike in size—so "Weight as a standard by which to measure tire quality MEANS NOTHING."

★ Nationally advertised tires—[illegible] on request.

The TRAIL BLAZER is Ward's second quality tire. We frankly admit it. But—certain manufacturers and dealers, jealous of Ward's deserved preeminence in the tire industry, are making and publishing misleading statements about Ward's tires. They give specifications which are NOT those of Ward's tires; and they then compare the prices of their second quality tires with those of our first quality tires—the famous Riversides. The table above shows accurately the manner in which TRAIL BLAZERS compare in quality and in price with other well known makes.

These other misleading advertisements (and if they are not intended to deliberately fool tire consumers, what IS their purpose?) also say that "Mail Order Tires are made by some unknown manufacturer ..." Well, Ward's tires are made by one of the largest tire companies in the world; a company that has always been famous for the fine quality of its products!

Here, therefore, is the correct story about Ward's TRAIL BLAZERS: They are every bit as good as other second quality tires (better than most, as the chart above will indicate) but they sell for less. Like all of Ward's tires, TRAIL BLAZERS are sold with an absolute guarantee of satisfactory service without limit as to time or mileage. If you [illegible] Riverside quality [illegible] Blazer—and save money.

No Montgomery Ward tire advertisement is complete without mentioning Ward's first quality Riverside. Riverside tires are one of the best known brands in America. They have been sold for 10 years. They, too, are made by the same large [illegible] manufacturer [illegible] Blazers. [illegible] Riverside tires [illegible] Blazers [illegible]

CITY-COUNTY HEALTH EXPENDITURES LOW

Local Department Operates Economically, State Report Shows.

Marion and Marion county has not only efficient but economical health service, a survey of all health districts in the state, compiled by the division of administration bureau of local health organization in the Ohio department of health reveals.

The city and county have what is recognized as the most satisfactory form of health service where a commissioner and his aids are employed full time to administer to the health needs of a combined city and county district.

The best comparison can be made with Mansfield and Richland county which have a combined health district setup and a similar population figure.

Mansfield pays an average of 82.2 cents per capita for its health work, as compared with a per capita cost of 37.2 cents in Marion, the survey revealed.

Marion county pays 9.5 cents on each $1,000 of the county tax duplicate for health work, this amount going into the financing of the combined city and county district. This figure is well under the state average of 15.7 cents and far below Morrow county figures of 30.5 cents on each $1,000 on the duplicate. Morrow county with 14,463 inhabitants in rural districts, is comparable to this county in size.

"THE FINGER POINTS" GOOD AT OHIO

Plenty of excitement in 'The Finger Points' playing at the Ohio through Thursday There will be no show tonight because of the Marion Concert association program.

Richard Barthelmess gives another splendid characterization as the newspaper reporter who withholds crime news in return for hush money from the underworld.

Regis Toomey is "Breezey," a member of "The Press" staff who is more anxious to live and let live than to get a by-line on a big crime expose story, and the next day be "on the spot."

A comedy, which is good, a song revue and news reel complete the bill. H H

The Marion is showing Robert Montgomery's first starring picture, "Shipmates," tonight and Tuesday. The young man is a deft comedian. Those big battleships, swarming with sailors are a thrilling sight.

Montgomery is a gob playing a Brazilian oil magnate when he's on shore leaves. Everything's "oke" with him until he falls in love with sweet Dorothy Jordan, the admiral's daughter.

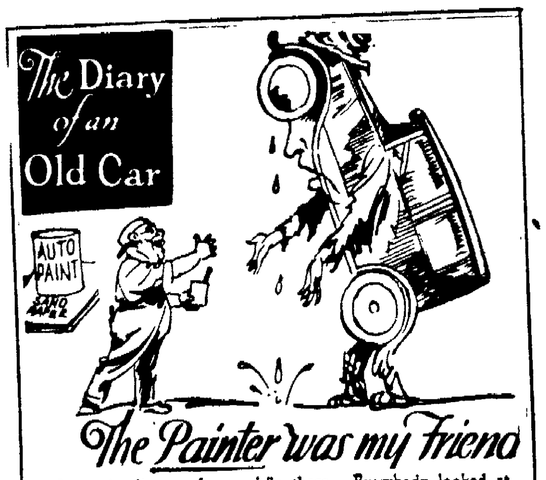
"DISTINCTIVE BU



The Painter was my Friend

I was in disgrace for a while there. Everybody looked at me and shook their heads. "Terrible shape!" was the thing heard, "looks a thousand years old!" But the sad part of it was I felt O K. and as husky as ever—no better engine in town.

There wasn't enough paint or varnish on me to see with the naked eye. Then along came Mr. Painter and he talked with my Boss. "It won't cost much and it'll make your car look as good as new," he said, "back in a week." And now look at me! Most folks think I just came from the factory and haven't been run a mile."

The paint industry each year has made it increasingly easy for home-owners to do "little jobs around the house." Your Boss painter will attend to the more important undertakings, but you can freshen up a line of fences, or make flower beds and trellises glisten in the sun; you can do over chairs and tables and wicker furniture; you can make a gloomy room or closet smile once more, and varnish, enamel or paint an ice box that has seen years of service, until neighbors think it is new.

Breaking the records from London to Rome, from Paris to London and from London to Dublin, cutting the first two almost in half, within eight days, is some series of feats.

Barbers' License Bill Gets the Ax.

Regardless of any estimate he may previously have made regarding the worth of the proposed measure, Governor White made manifest that he had reached a true one when he vetoed the barbers' license bill.

The governor, in vetoing the bill, explained that he had promised to sign a somewhat similar bill owing to the fact that he had been led to believe that it was a needed health measure, but that he had since learned that there are state, county and city health regulations pertaining to barber shops which are ample to protect the public patronizing them.

If there is any ground for surprise concerning Governor White's course in connection with the bill, it is that he ever agreed to sign a proposed measure of the kind rather than that he vetoed this particular measure. All the known facts in connection with the bill went to give it far more of the appearance of a bit of class legislation than a proposal looking to the preservation of the public health. If our memory serves us correctly, the first intimation of the pressing need of it which came to the public was uttered from outside the state by an official of the organization which supplied the powerful lobby behind it. It had all the earmarks of an organization measure designed to give jobs to more state pap-suckers, and the state already has far too many laws of that kind as it is. In the interests of governmental economy, were there no other reasons, it would be far better that the assembly annul a lot of laws with job-creating possibilities which we already have, than pass more of the kind.

Glaring Inequalities.

Figures were presented in these columns, some months ago, to show the striking inequalities in the burdens borne by the states and the benefits received by them from the federal government in federal-aid projects. In an address before the Union League club, of Philadelphia, one day last week, Congressman James M. Beck quoted statistics bringing out those inequalities in a way more impressive than any which has previously come to our attention. He showed that, without considering large and important public improvements, which, while primarily local in character, are yet of general benefit, and including only direct subsidies from the federal treasury to the states for purposes which are not federal, there are six states which draw from the treasury in such subsidies two dollars for every dollar they pay in, and two states which draw more than three dollars for every dollar contributed to the treasury by them.

By way of illustration, Idaho paid in federal taxes in 1930 a total of $863,000 and drew out $1,315,000, thus drawing from more advanced states 151 per cent. more than it paid in. In the same way, Montana contributed $2,610,000 and drew out $3,107,000, New Mexico paid $924,000 and drew out $1,387,000, North Dakota paid federal taxes to the amount of $556,000 and drew out $1,704,000, which means it received 306 per cent. of its contribution; South Dakota paid $887,000 and drew $1,712,000, or 192 per cent., and Wyoming's federal tax contributions aggregated $752,000 while its draw was $2,400,000, or 319 per cent.

In contrast to these figures New York paid in $928,000,000 and drew $8,727,000, less than one per cent.; Pennsylvania paid $230,000,000 and received $7,000,000, or about three per cent., and Illinois paid in $247,000,000 and received $4,300,000, or a little less than two per cent. of what it contributed.

The three states cited as getting back but a trifling percentage of their contributions are naturally given because they are the chief three losers by the federal subsidy system, but a number of other populous and prosperous states suffer in the same way, our own state of Ohio among them.

And what is true of the federal system in this regard is likewise, as we have pointed out heretofore, true in the states, the wealthy and more prosperous counties pay out vast sums year after year which are applied to the benefit of the less wealthy counties.

But in the case of the federal system, the inequalities are not limited to the financial. There are political inequalities as well, in that the state division of the smallest population has the same representation in the senate as the state with the largest. Nevada with a population of about twice that of our own county has two United States senators, the same as New York state, with a population of 12,619,503. It was with such inequalities as these in mind that Joseph R. Grundy, who later represented the state of Pennsylvania in the senate, suggested that, when it came to the making of tariff schedules, it would be becoming on their part should the "backward" states take a back seat. Do the senators from the "backward" states do it? They do not, either in tariff making or in anything else. Why, as a matter of fact, the "backward" state bunch may be depended on to do a big share of the agitating for this, that or the other which marks the sessions of the senate, and the majority of them will generally be found behind any socialistic plan which will further the centralization of power in the government which has been so indulgent in its treatment of the states they represent. Is this true? Let the reader glance over the senate roster of the seventy-first congress, and be convinced. He may also get a better understanding of the why of so much agitation for the further centralization of power in Washington. The more that power is thus centralized, the better senators and representatives from the "backward" states will be able to play the game.

Captain Carl von Hoffman, the scientist, who has spent fifteen years as an explorer and adventurer in Africa, resents the expression, "Darkest Africa," holding that that continent is no more dangerous than a busy city street. That's not saying so much for Africa as a haven of safety, when all is said.

American motorists paid out last year $494,683,410 by way of taxes on the 14,751,305,978 gallons of gasoline they used, the year's consumption for motoring purposes being 14.6 per cent. greater than in 1929. The total direct tax on the motorist averaged $32.09, made up of an average annual registration fee of $13.41 and an average gasoline tax of $18.62. Nearly $500,000,000 for gas taxes! It certainly takes money to make the wheels go around!

According to a Paris cable, the French government has called off negotiations on the naval pact plan and recalled its delegate from London, one result of which will be that newspaper readers will no longer be compelled to guess from the contradictory cables from day to day what the real state of the negotiations may be.

Paris scientists hold that peals of thunder from clear skies, recently heard over there were due to sunspots. The activities of sunspots have become mighty comprehensive. Up to date they have been held responsible for just about every old thing with the possible exception of prohibition.

Against the record of having built more tonnage during the last three years than all the rest of the world, the British prospect for this year will not be more than one-third of the world's output, and in consequence the gloom of the British shipping industry is thick enough to be cut with a knife. Who knows? Maybe the explanation is that the British saturation point has about been reached.

Six residents of Zion City have filed a petition in involuntary bankruptcy against Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva, charging that he committed an act of bankruptcy in transferring his properties in that community to the Zion Industries, a corporation organized under the laws of Delaware and empowered to sell a total of $5,000,000 of preferred and common stock. There's no use talking, trouble of some kind generally hovers over when an attempt is made to yoke up religion and business ventures.

THE YOUNGSTER RECEIVES RECOGNITION.

Editorial Opinion.

FLOWERS OF SPANISH RHETORIC.

Senor Zamora, provisional president of the new Spanish republic, greets the Americas with a flourish which is largely rhetorical. Speaking over the radio, he declares that the destiny of the new government rests on this side of the Atlantic rather than on the other and, like Matilda in Canning's skit, swear an eternal friendship. "If," he says, "at any time the European nations should form a bloc to threaten the interests of the Americas the Spanish republic would join hands with its sister republics across the sea." The contingency is so improbable that this promise need not be taken seriously, even if Senor Zamora is serious in making it. One may doubt if even in the Latin-American countries of South America Spanish intervention would be welcomed; and certainly the United States would have no occasion to look beyond its own borders for help.

It may be, as he further says, that great love for Spain exists in the New world, and that the "almost miraculous" change in that country should not surprise us because we went through the same experience in 1776. The parallel does not run on all fours, there is a great divergence between the revolt of the American colonies from British rule and the republican victory at the Spanish municipal elections. Whether its full fruits will be garnered is still a question which the somewhat grandiloquent plans announced by Senor Zamora do not answer. The suggestion that when the republic is firmly established Spanish residents of America will be represented in the government seems slightly fantastic. It could come to pass only if these residents went back to Spain to live. International complications would result from any other course.

The whole address reveals a confusion of thought that must hinder any attempts to establish a lasting republican regime on the ruins of the monarchy. It reminds one irresistibly of the impractical and transitory past efforts to reconcile republican principles with the genius of the Spanish people. If what he says is not merely the language of compliment, Senor Zamora has a very imperfect conception of the gravity of the task before him.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

THE CASE FOR HIGH WAGES.

What may be regarded as the Hoover administration's attitude toward the prevailing agitation for wage cuts, as a means to trade recovery, was succinctly set forth at Atlantic City yesterday by Robert P. Lamont, secretary of commerce. Addressing the opening session of the United States chamber of commerce, the cabinet spokesman reminded the nation's business leaders that the most prosperous periods of American industrial history have been those "coincident with high wages and shorter hours."

Thereupon Secretary Lamont proceeded to argue that stabilization of income for workers is essential to maintenance of that purchasing power which is the bed-rock of prosperity. "If millions of workers are out of employment for a year through loss of wages, their buying power is cut by billions of dollars," the secretary said. "If the income of the remaining millions who are still employed is cut ten per cent through shorter hours and part time work, the loss amounts to several more billions. Add to this great loss in buying power the retrenchment due to the fears and uncertainties of such a period, and the total loss of purchasing power becomes a staggering amount."

Mr. Lamont paid a deserved tribute to the high-mindedness and sense of responsibility—perhaps it would be fair to call it enlightened self interest—which have characterized the conduct of industry during "one of the most severe depressions of our business history." Industry generally he declared, has shown an interest in its workers of a quality never before seen in this or any other country. Labor's attitude has been no less intelligent and helpful. The net result has been an astonishing absence of strife and stress amid conditions which, had heads less cool been at the helm of capital and labor, might have easily led to grave eruptions.

Secretary Lamont does not indulge in idle or extravagant words when he says that the type of cooperative spirit and collective effort witnessed in the United States during the past year and a half "holds out the best hope of the future." Pending the actual and visible swing of the economic pendulum in the right direction, such self-control on the part of employer and employe is a boon of inestimable advantage. It comes near to being the silver lining to the cloud. From what has just been said in Atlantic City, it is certain that the federal authorities are strongly opposed to anything like wage cuts that might overcast the economic horizon afresh.—Washington Star, April 2.

Part of the Job.

Mr. Hoover doubtless realizes that being blamed for everything by the spokesman for the minority is a part of the executive job in this country.—Detroit Free Press.

The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil: He shall preserve thy soul.—Psalm 121.7.

Use of Lamp Treatment.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Within recent years, light therapy has become very popular. The use of certain lamps under proper supervision is of great benefit. However, the indiscreet use of health lamps for every conceivable ailment may do harm.

"Actino-therapy," which is the name used for the treatment of certain ailments by rays of light, should be given only by a competent person who has received training in this subject. The ultra-violet rays are extremely beneficial, but also dangerous if handled carelessly.

When the skin is exposed to the rays of a carbon lamp, certain complex changes take place. The most marked of these is shown in the blood. The constituents of the blood, namely the red and white cells, the platelets, the fluid part of the blood, the hemoglobin, or coloring matter, all undergo marked changes.

When exposed to the ultra-violet ray, the red blood cells are slightly increased in number. After continuous treatment the coloring matter increases. It is believed, too, there may be slight increase in the number of white blood cells.

The blood platelets are tiny substances found in the blood stream. For a long time the functions of these bodies were not known. It is now believed they have something to do with the resistance of the body to infection. In acute infectious diseases, as coryza, measles, influenza, the blood platelets are decreased in number.

Following exposure to the ultra-violet rays, the platelets are increased. It is interesting to note that in animals kept in the dark and away from sunlight, there is a marked decrease in the number of these platelets.

In a recent experiment conducted on college students the ultra-violet treatment was found to be of distinct value. Students who were extremely susceptible to common colds and infections during the winter months, were greatly benefited by this treatment. These students showed a 40 per cent. decrease in the occurrence of colds.

Please remember not to use any lamp without first consulting your physician. Skin irritations and other internal disorders may occur when this method of therapy is used carelessly.

Michelson's Last Experiment.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The scientific world just now is awaiting with intense interest the announcement of the results of the scientific experiment which Michelson says will be his last. He is now working on the selfsame experiment with which his scientific career began, the determination of the velocity of light. From his sick bed whereon he has lain for weeks he is directing this important experiment, which is being efficiently carried on by his assistants. The experiment, it seems, will be conducted six different times, in order to eliminate all chances of error. Beams of light are to be raced in a vacuum a mile long. The vacuum tube probably the largest ever hitherto constructed by a scientist, is a line of pipe 5,280 feet long and three feet in diameter. This vacuum eliminates the necessity for making even the slight corrections for temperature and moisture content of the air, which exist when the light ray is sent in the open from mountain peak to mountain peak. Already the figure for the velocity of light, formerly computed by Michelson, is the figure accepted by all scientists, namely 186,284 miles per second.

Albert Abraham Michelson was born in Strelno, Poland, on December 19, 1852. He was brought to this country by his parents when he was two years old. As a lad of seventeen he won an appointment to the Naval academy, but in order to secure it he had to go all the way from San Francisco to Washington, to persuade President Grant to give him the appointment. When he was first appointed an instructor in physics at Annapolis by Admiral Sampson, he was not particularly interested in the science, but he actually invested ten dollars of his own money to construct an apparatus to measure the speed of light in a classroom demonstration. To his own surprise and gratification, he succeeded in making a more accurate determination of the velocity than had ever before been achieved. His interest in physics and in science now thoroughly aroused, he resigned from the navy and spent two years studying at Berlin, Heidelberg and Paris.

During his recent visit to this country, Einstein paid high tribute to Michelson. He has recently been called one of the greatest physicists of all time, and the world's leading authority in the field of optics. His name has been mentioned by scientists along with the names of Newton and Einstein. It is well known that he started Einstein on the theory of relativity with an experiment first performed in 1883, in which he and Professor Morley of the Case School of Applied Sciences in Cleveland raced one beam of light against another in the effort to measure the velocity of the earth through space. The race was a dead heat, to the amazement of physicists everywhere.

Professor Michelson has made many important contributions to science, and is particularly ingenious in inventing instruments of high precision for carrying out his experiments. In 1920 he measured the giant red star, Betelgeuse, and showed that star to have a diameter 300 times that of the sun. In conjunction with Professor Henry Gordon Gale, and utilizing the facts of tidal action, he demonstrated that the earth is as rigid as steel. One of his earliest experiments was to determine the length of the meter in terms of the red ray of cadmium, thus establishing a unit that could never be destroyed.—Copyright, 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The World's Fastest Game.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

One of the prime attractions of gay Havana is Jai Alai, acclaimed by sporting experts as the fastest and possibly the most pulse-speeding game in the world.

This game, originated in the Basque country, has long been played in Spain and Cuba, flourishes in Florida's winter resorts and has been tried out in Chicago.

Jai Alai is played on an enormously long court or fronton, as the Cubans call it, with a small, solid and heavy ball. The players fling the ball against the wall of the fronton with a basket-like racket attached to the right arm. The player on the other side catches this in his basket and slams it back against the wall as fast as he can. From one to the other the ball goes at a lightning-like speed. Spectators are forever expecting the cannon-ball-like missile to elude the basket—Cubans call it cesta—but with miraculous adroitness and astonishing speed the game goes on. When one of the players finally misses the spectator is usually as exhausted from the suspense as he.

As the score swings from one to the other, the odds on the player change with it. The betting commissioners station themselves along the front of the stand and cry out in excited voices the new odds. The shifting of the bets is paced to the game's mad velocity and, while the ball goes zipping through the air and the players dart from one corner of the court to the other, the bookmakers are frenziedly taking bets.

But besides Jai Alai there are many other things of interest in glittering, tropical Havana, that have the virtue of being completely different from anything in the United States. The broad avenues with their stately palms, the numerous marble monuments and costly public buildings are a delight to the eye.

The entire spirit of Havana is warm and rich and friendly. Even the beggars on the street that stop you and ask for alms are smilingly gracious. If you give them a few pennies, they bless and thank you. If you refuse, they bow understandingly, bless you and move away.

McKinley's Ancestry of Artisans.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

William McKinley came from a long line of artisans. The first of his line in America, known as "David, the Weaver." He came as an immigrant from the north of Ireland in 1743, and landed at New Castle, Pennsylvania, but like most newcomers of the time in America, he invested in land and bought a farm of 316 acres in Chanceford township, York county, overlooking the Susquehanna river.

That man was the great-great-great-grandfather of President McKinley. His name occurs so frequently in the records of the local government that it is evident that he was aggressive and became a leader of the community in which he lived. The will recorded shows that he died intestate, and the probate notary register reveals that he left, besides this farm, $1,100 in personal property to his children. He died in 1761. His oldest son, John McKinley, born about 1727, died February 18, 1779, was one of the large land owners in York county and rendered some service in the Revolutionary war, though nearly sixty years old. He was a wagon-maker. John McKinley's son, David, grandson of David, the weaver, born May 16, 1755, saw much strenuous service in the Revolution.

James McKinley, son of David and grandson of the immigrant McKinley, was born September 19, 1783, and became the first of the line in the country to become interested in iron manufacture. His grandfather was a wagon-maker. He lived for a time at Mercersburg, Pennsylvania, and later at Lisbon, Ohio. This son, William, father of the President, managed an iron furnace at New Wilmington, Pennsylvania, for a number of years.

David McKinley, the great-grandfather of President McKinley, came to Ohio in his later years, and a marker in the cemetery of Old Bethel Lutheran church in Crawford county shows the place of his burial. By his side lies the body of Hanna C. Rose, whose daughter Mary, David's son, James, had married, and was, therefore, the great-grandmother of President McKinley.

SENATE SUES TO OUST BOARD HEAD

Removal of Chairman Smith of Power Commission Asked.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 4—The senate today sought removal of Chairman Smith of the federal power commission through a suit filed in the District of Columbia supreme court by its special counsel.

John W. Davis and Alexander J. Groesbeck, counsel for the senate, petitioned the court to hold that Smith occupied his office illegally. They asked that the chairman be required to show by what warrant he holds office and that he be ousted if it be adjudged that he has usurped the position.

First Action Reconsidered

Smith was appointed chairman by the commission in December by President Hoover and confirmed by the senate, but in January the senate reconsidered the nomination and declined to approve the chairman.

This second action followed an organization meeting of the commission held by Smith and Commissioners Draper and Garsaud, in which they voted to dismiss Solicitor Charles A. Russell and Chief Accountant William J. King.

Senator Walsh, Democrat of Montana, presented the resolution, under authorization of which Davis and Groesbeck acted today, after President Hoover had refused to submit Smith's name for consideration and permitted the chairman to undertake his duties with the commission.

Although the name of District Attorney Rover was attached to the senate's petition, it was announced that this was but a formality and that he would take no action in the case.

Former Senator George Wharton, leader of Pennsylvania has been retained by Smith to defend him.

to expect anything but annihilation." Annihilation is such a discouraging word.

Sir Oliver Lodge's conclusion "based on elementary facts," is that personality, including character and memory, is a persistent reality. How pleasant to believe that you will wake up in another world, and say "Hello, here I am again. I wonder where the family is?"

Sir Oliver's statement concerning the ether and its nature, whether it convinces you or not, is that of a great scientist. For an ordinary man to contradict him, on science, would be like a Maltese kitten telling Edison, "You don't know anything about electricity."

Lodge's statement in full you may read in his little book, "Beyond Physics." If Lodge is right, the ether interests you, for everything, including our important selves, must be explained in connection with the local central fact and force, the ether of space.

Cold-blooded physicists may call Sir Oliver's conjecture the shadow of a shadow "explaining the unknown by the unknown."

But the rebellious modern mind, not content with the Old Testament account of things, in the light of modern scientists, may find in Lodge's ether an offset to Herbert Spencer's unpleasant word "annihilation."

SHINGLE ROOF FIRES KEEP FIREMEN BUSY

Department Answers Four Calls Over Week-End; None Serious.

Shingle roofs continue to provide activities for the local firemen. Late Saturday night firemen from the No. 2 station were called to the home of H. J. Cleveland on Wood street where sparks had set fire to the shingle roof. The blaze was put out with a small loss.

Sunday at 11.50 a. m. a passerby discovered fire on the roof at the home of Mrs. Cordelia Fauzy, on North Seffner avenue. The fire was put out by firemen from the central station with a $10 loss.

Tramps who had built a fire in a concrete trench were responsible for a small fire at the abandoned rubber plant on North Grand avenue Sunday morning. Planks which had been laid across the trench caught fire and Fire Chief McFarland with several men from the central station answered a call sent in by neighbors.

A serious fire was narrowly averted at 677 Bennett street at 5.15 Sunday afternoon when children set fire to a rubbish pile between a garage and the building of the Ward Transportation Co. The fire was put out by firemen from the No. 2 station after the garage had been slightly scorched.

UNIVERSITY DEFENDS DISMISSAL OF CO-ED

Argument Presented by Miami Trustees in Jean West Case.

By United Press

HAMILTON, O., May 4—The trustees of Miami university at Oxford "are vested with authority to enforce regulations, including scholastic standards, otherwise the school could not possibly be operated as an educational institution," according to arguments presented on behalf of the university today in answer to an injunction suit filed by Miss Jean West, 19, of Portsmouth.

Miss West, daughter of William West, Portsmouth city plumbing inspector, filed suit for an injunction to enjoin the school from expelling or suspending her from the teachers' college where she is a student. She was ordered suspended because of failure to meet scholastic requirements in music and art.

The suit was heard recently and Miss West's father challenged right of the school, a state-supported institution, to drop his daughter from the rolls. The court took the case under advisement and directed opposing attorneys to file briefs.

"The particular regulation involved in this case," the answer filed today said, "can not be said to be unreasonable, arbitrary, oppressive or discriminatory. They are essential to the orderly management, the efficient operation and the very life and reputation of the institution."

Siam Rulers Receive Rousing Welcome in Metropolis.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 4—Bugles blared an imperial welcome and rifles glinted in the spring sun today as New York said "glad to meet you" to King Prajadhipok and Queen Rambai Barni of Siam.

To the accompaniment of screaming sirens of motorcycle police, the eastern potentate and his queen drove from the Westchester estate of the late Mrs. Whitelaw Reid to city hall to receive the formal welcome that had been delayed awaiting their convenience.

The national anthems of Siam and the United States rang out and soldiers, sailors and marines saluted smartly as the royal pair entered city hall.

Inside Mayor Walker made a speech of welcome and the monarch responded, praising the "force and enterprise of American business" and the hospitality of Americans.

RESCUE FLIER NEARS MAROONED EXPLORER

Swedish Aviator Within Flying Distance of Briton in Greenland.

By The Associated Press

ANGMAGSALIK, Greenland, May 4—Captain Albin Ahrenberg, Swedish aviator, was within flying distance today of the tiny hut on Greenland's ice cap where Augustine Courtauld, British explorer, has been marooned for many months.

After one false start Captain Ahrenberg flew here yesterday from Reykjavik, Iceland in five hours, completing a dangerous flight across the north Atlantic from Malmoe, Sweden in four stages. Formation of ice on the wings of his plane prevented him from continuing his journey in search of the isolated Britisher.

Captain Ahrenberg's immediate destination is the main camp of the British arctic air route expedition, about 40 miles inland and theme to the meteorological station about 150 miles inland where Courtauld volunteered to spend the winter gathering data for a proposed air line to Canada. He plans to drop food for the explorer and possibly make a landing to bring him back.

Meanwhile, three dog team expeditions are presumed to be nearing their objective. One is led by friends of Courtauld. Nothing has been heard from them for some time but they are believed to be well fortified against the rigors of the north.

FOURTH DEATH STIRS CITY OF SAN DIEGO

Latest Victim, a Telephone Operator, Discovered Stabbed to Death.

By The Associated Press

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 4—The death of Hazel Bradshaw, who at 22, was the principal support of her mother and nine brothers and sisters, stunned this city today as the fourth of a series of murders. Her body, with 17 stab wounds in it, was found yesterday, lying near an adobe wall of the Indian village here. M. E. Garrison, 35, her suitor, was held for questioning.

Although her slaying was the fourth one in recent weeks, police declared there was no link between her death and that of a 10-year-old Virginia Brooks, whose body was found March 11; that of Louise Tueber, hanged two weeks ago, or that of Mrs. Dolly Bibbens, strangled in her apartment. No clue has been found to the slayers of the other three.

Shortly after Miss Bradshaw's body was found, Garrison, a steward in the commissary department of the San Diego & Arizona railroad, for which Miss Bradshaw worked as a telephone operator, walked into police headquarters and said:

"I hear Hazel is dead."

He admitted being with the girl until nearly midnight, Saturday, but denied he had killed her.

Man Who Gave Blood To Save 200 Drops Dead

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 4—The blood of Howard N. Kennedy, which he shared in transfusion to save more than 200 lives, never will be used in another operation.

The 47-year-old World war hero and president of the Free Blood Donors' Association of America dropped dead of a heart attack yesterday.

Estimates made by friends from records they had kept, show he gave his blood to more persons in transfusions than any other known man. And he gave it free.

Kennedy, who numbered among his decorations a congressional medal, Croix de Guerre and a Carnegie hero award, was talking to his wife when he was stricken.

In 1926 when former President Coolidge's father was dying in Vermont, Kennedy went there by airplane to offer his blood. He underwent several transfusion operations in front line dressing stations during the World war and is credited with saving the lives of 18 soldiers.

Besides his widow, a two-year old son survives.
